This project was supported by Grant #15PJDP-23-GK-01575-JJVO awarded to the National Children's Advocacy Center by the Office of Juvenile Justice and Delinquency Prevention, Office of Justice Programs, U.S. Department of Justice. The opinions, findings, and conclusions or recommendations expressed in this publication are those of the author(s) and do not necessarily reflect those of the Department of Justice.

Scope

Elizabeth Letourneau, Ph.D., is a professor at Johns Hopkins Bloomberg School of Public Health and the director of the MOORE Center for the Prevention of Child Sexual Abuse. She has conducted research involving the evaluation of clinical practice and legal policy related to adult and adolescent sexual offending. By framing child sexual abuse as a preventable public health problem, Dr. Letourneau is working to prevent child sexual abuse through the development of perpetration prevention programs. She advises the Centers for Disease Control & Prevention, European Commission, and other government, corporate, and NGO entities.

Organization

Publications are listed in date descending order and include articles, reports, research briefs, book chapters, and international publications. Links are provided to full text publications when possible. However, this collection may not be complete. More information can be obtained in CALiO™, the Child Abuse Library Online.
